Underfunded programs could go up in smoke

Strapped. Only Wayne County, Mich., pays its DA's Office less per violent incident than Philadelphia.

If the District Attorney's Office receives the budget currently proposed by Mayor Michael Nutter's administration, incarceration alternatives like the Small Amounts of Marijuana program may soon go up in smoke, District Attorney Seth Williams testified yesterday before City Council.

"Already I've directed my assistants to prepare for the end of the SAM program," he said. "As of July 1, all cases will have to be diverted to trial rooms."

In fact, the budget for Philadelphia's chief prosecutor has flatlined, not even keeping up with the rate of inflation and failing to account for salary increases awarded to police and probation officers.

"This is not how the mayor has treated other criminal justice agencies," Williams said, running through a laundry list of agencies that have received budget increases, including the police department, prisons and even the Office of Innovation and Technology, whose budget has ballooned by nearly 150 percent since 2008. "So this is not about a lack of money," Williams said. "In years past, maybe it was. Now it is about values."

Williams said his office has been key in pioneering money-saving tech reforms like electronic discovery filing. "But we, ourselves, may not be able to operate the system because our computers are out of warranty and the software is from the 1990s."

Nutter wants Philly to host 2024 Games

Mayor Michael A. Nutter sent a letter to the United States Olympic Committee (USOC) confirming the city's commitment to working with the USOC to bid on the 2024 Olympic Games. The city also expressed its interest in the possibility of becoming the U.S. candidate dity and, ultimately, the host city.

"The Philadelphia region has enthusiastically embraced the prospect of bidding on and hosting a future Olympic Games, and we look forward with great anticipation to the opportunity to work with the USOC on this project," Nutter said in a release.

Underage. Former Miss Delaware Teen USA gets probation

The former Miss Delaware Teen USA who resigned her crown after a sex video featuring a woman resembling her surfaced online earlier this year received a year of probation in Maryland court for underage alcohol possession, according to reports.

Melissa King, 19, was charged in August with alcohol possession after a bottle of liquor was found in a vehicle she was driving, reports say. She received her sentence Monday in the Worcester County District Court.

King vacated her crown in February after the online sex video went viral. METRO

For sale: Home with 'Love Letters' mural

Selling point. West Philly home with Steve Powers' "Love Letters" mural can be had for $110K.

A priceless piece of art is in the discount bin.

The three-story, West Philly row house draped in a Steve Powers "Love Letters" mural is up for sale. Asking price: $110,000.

Powers used the home, at the corner at 50th and Market streets, as a canvas for one of 33 artworks that were strung together to form a love story.

The complete saga is unveiled as the other artworks, splashed on homes stretching from 45th to 63rd streets along the El route, are revealed one by one. It was completed on Valentine's Day 2010.

The building, which features a gutted ground-level retail space and three apartment units, encompasses 1,348 square feet.

Real estate agent Faith Boose said there are no guidelines for an owner to maintain or even keep the artwork. And she said that to this point, the art hasn't been the main feature.

"The price is the major selling point at this time," Boose said.

Engineers. High school students show off robotics skills at Drexel University as part of Philly Tech Week.

Drexel University was the center of the robotics world in Philadelphia for a few hours yesterday.

The Philly Robotics Expo, which was sponsored by Drexel University, was a one-day robotics demonstration and workshop geared toward K-through-12 students.

This marks the third year the event has been involved with Philly Tech Week, a weeklong celebration of technology and innovation in Philadelphia, according to its website.

"Robotics is the greatest example of learning by doing," said Youngmoo Kim, associate professor of electrical and computer engineering at Drexel.

"You learn because you want it to do something when you push something, not because you want to get the right answer on a test." Drexel engineering students, as well as Central High School students, demonstrated autonomous programming to real robot driving lessons.

Boston bombing suspect charged in hospital bed

Suspect. A magistrate judge stood by as Tsarnaev was charged at the hospital.

Federal prosecutors charged badly wounded Boston Marathon bombing suspect Dzhokhar Tsarnaev in his hospital bed yesterday with using a weapon of mass destruction, a charge that could result in the death penalty, officials said.

"Although our investigation is ongoing, today's charges bring a successful end to a tragic week for the city of Boston, and for our country," U.S. Attorney General Eric Holder said in a statement.

Tsarnaev, 19, was also charged with malicious destruction of property resulting in death.

Tsarnaev, an ethnic Chechen college student suspected of carrying out the attacks with his older brother, was unable to speak after he was captured with throat injuries sustained during shootouts with police.

The fact that he was charged indicated the previously sedated defendant was communicative because the magistrate judge would have to be satisfied he was aware of the proceedings.

Police previously declined to comment on media reports he was communicating with authorities in writing.

"There have been widely published reports that he is [communicating silently]. I wouldn't dispute that, but I don't have any specific information on that myself," Boston Police Commissioner Ed Davis told CNN. REUTERS

One week

Pause at time of bombings

The city of Boston paused at 2:50 p.m. yesterday to mark the moment a week ago when the two bombs made of pressure cookers and packed with nails and ball bearings tore through the crowd.

Police said the suspects made enough additional bombs for them to believe that more attacks were planned. REUTERS

The case. Boston bomb prosecutor is known for tough record on crime

As the top federal law enforcer in Massachusetts, U.S. Attorney Carmen Ortiz has taken heat for being tough to a fault and coming down too hard on some defendants.

But as she builds a possible death penalty case against suspected bomber Dzhokhar Tsarnaev, the unflinching approach that earned her opponents in the past could become a legal asset for the biggest case of her career, said attorneys who have faced off against her.

"The criticism lately has been that they've overcharged some people and been overly harsh," said Peter Elikann, a Boston defense attorney. "I don't think that's relevant for Tsarnaev because no one is going to accuse any prosecutor of making too big a deal out of this case." REUTERS

Public gets Free TV with no monthly bills

Federal law makes TV network giants broadcast Free TV signals regionally in crystal clear digital picture in all 50 states allowing U.S. households to pull in Free TV with a sleek $49 micro antenna device engineered to pull in nothing but Free TV channels with no cable, satellite or internet connection and no monthly bills

Who Gets Free TV: Listed below are the Philadelphia area zip codes that can get Free over the air TV channels. If you find the first two digits of your zip code immediately call: 1-888-752-7147

PENNSYLVANIA - Today's announcement by CompTek has the Free TV Hotlines ringing off the hook.

That's because Philadelphia area residents who find their zip code listed in today's publication are getting Free TV channels thanks to an amazing razor-thin invention called Clear-Cast™.

Philadelphia area residents who call the Toll Free Hotlines before the 48-hour order deadline to get Clear-Cast can pull in Free TV channels with crystal clear digital picture and no monthly bills.

This announcement is being so widely advertised because a U.S. Federal law makes TV broadcasters transmit their signals in digital format, which allows everyone to receive these over-the-air digital signals for free with no monthly bills.

Here's how it works. Clear-Cast, the sleek micro antenna device with advanced technology links up directly to pull in the Free TV signals being broadcast in your area with crystal clear digital picture and no monthly bills.

Clear-Cast was invented by a renowned NASA Space Technology Hall of Fame scientist who currently holds 23 U.S. Gov't issued patents. For the past 20 years, he has specialized in developing antenna systems for NASA, Motorola, XM Satellite Radio and companies around the world.

His latest patent-pending invention, Clear-Cast, is a sleek micro antenna device engineered to pull in the Free TV signals through advanced technology with no cable, satellite or internet connection and no monthly bills.

"Clear-Cast is being released to the general public because we just don't think people should keep paying for TV when they can get it for free," said Conrad Miller, Manager of Operations at CompTek.

"There's never a monthly bill to pay and all the channels you get with Clear-Cast are absolutely free. So you see, Clear-Cast is not like cable or satellite. It was engineered to access solely the over-the-air signals that include all the top rated national and regional networks, like ABC, NBC, CBS, FOX, PBS, CW and about 90% of the most watched TV shows like America's Got Talent, NCIS, 60 Minutes, American Idol, The Big Bang Theory, The Bachelorette, Person of Interest, CSI, The Mentalist, Two and a Half Men, Sunday Night Football plus news, weather and more all for free with no monthly bills," Miller said.

"That's why Clear-Cast is such a great alternative for everyone who is sick and tired of paying expensive cable and satellite bills every month," he said.

"People who get Clear-Cast will say it feels like getting an extra paycheck every month. You see, with Clear-Cast you'll receive free over-the-air broadcast channels with crystal clear digital picture, not the cable or satellite only channels. So being able to eliminate those channels puts all the money you were spending back in your pocket every month," Miller said.

And here's the best part. The sleek micro antenna device called Clear-Cast is so technically advanced it pulls in even more of the channels being broadcast in your area for Free with no monthly bills.

That way you can channel surf through the favorite TV shows. The number of shows and channels you'll get depends on where you live. People living in large metropolitan areas may get up to 53 static-free channels, while people in outlying areas will get less. That means even if you're in a rural area that just pulls in NBC, ABC, CBS, FOX and PBS broadcasts there's hundreds of shows each year to watch for free.

Consumers report that the crystal clear picture quality with Clear-Cast is the best they've ever seen. That's because you get virtually all pure uncompressed signals direct from the broadcasters for free.

Clear-Cast was engineered to link up directly like a huge outdoor directional antenna but in a lightweight, slim-line package. Its sturdy copper alloy and polymer construction will most likely far outlast your TV.

It just couldn't be any easier to get Free over-the-air digital TV shows with Clear-Cast. Simply plug it into your TV, place Clear-Cast on a window pane and run autoscan. It works on virtually any model TV and is easily hidden out of sight behind a curtain or window treatment.

Thousands of Philadelphia area residents are expected to call to get Clear-Cast because it just doesn't make any sense to keep paying for TV when you can get hundreds of shows absolutely free.

So, Philadelphia area residents lucky enough to find their zip code listed in today's publication need to immediately call the Free TV Hotline before the 48-hour deadline to get Clear-Cast that pulls in Free TV with crystal clear digital picture. If lines are busy keep trying, all calls will be answered. ■

■ NEVER PAY A BILL AGAIN: Pennsylvanians will be on the lookout for their postal carrier because thousands of Clear-Casts will soon be delivered to lucky Philadelphia area residents who beat the 48-hour order deadline and live in any of the zip code areas listed below. Everyone is getting Clear-Cast because it pulls in nothing but Free TV channels with no cable, satellite or internet connection and no monthly bills.

How to get Free TV: Listed below are the Philadelphia area zip codes that can get Free TV channels with no monthly bills. If you find the first two digits of your zip code immediately call 1-888-752-7147 beginning at precisely 8:30am this morning. Today's announcement photo above shows just a handful of the major over-the-air broadcast networks you can receive with Clear-Cast for free. It saves a ton of money by not picking up expensive cable only channels like ESPN so there's never a monthly bill. This is all possible because a U.S. Federal Law makes TV broadcasters transmit their signals in digital format, which allows everyone to use Clear-Cast to pull in Free TV channels with no monthly bills. CompTek is giving every U.S. household a 50% off discount to help cover the cost of Clear-Cast. Clear-Cast, the sleek micro antenna device is a one-time purchase that plugs in to your TV to pull in Free TV channels in crystal clear digital picture with no monthly bills. Each Clear-Cast normally costs $98, but U.S. households who beat the 48-hour deadline are authorized to get a 50% off discount for each Clear-Cast and cover just $49 and shipping as long as they call the Free TV Hotline at 1-888-752-7147 before the deadline ends or online at www.clear-cast.com. Investigation.

Police said various Canadian security forces had conducted joint operations in the two cities.

Canadian police said yesterday they had arrested and charged two men with an "al Qaeda-supported" plot to derail a passenger train.

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police said it had arrested Chiheb Esseghaier, 30, of Montreal, and Raed Jaser, 35, of Toronto in connection with the plot, which authorities said was not linked to the Boston Marathon bombings but likely had connections to al-Qaeda.

Neither is a Canadian citizen.

"The RCMP is alleging that Chiheb Esseghaier and Raed Jaser were conspiring to carry out an al Qaeda-supported attack against a VIA passenger train," Malizia said.

VIA is Canada's equivalent of Amtrak, operating passenger rail services in Canada.

U.S. officials said the attack would have targeted a rail line between New York and Toronto, but Canadian police did not confirm that.

CHAVEZ ABSENCE WILL BE FELT

How did you connect with the "people" your book references?
I was living and teaching in Venezuela in 2006-2007, and my students were political organizers from across Venezuela who had come to study in Caracas. They provided intimate access to people that others might not be able to interview: radical organizers from across the country, former guerrillas, militia members and leaders of a variety of social movements that contributed to Hugo Chavez's rise to power.

Chavez is a polarizing figure in Latin America. What did you make of that?
Chavez was certainly a polarizing person, but social change rarely comes without polarization. In some senses it was this very question that drew me to study Venezuela: political science and other academic scholarship on the subject in the United States is dreadful, tending to simply echo common misconceptions or impose a vision of U.S.-style democracy on Venezuela.

What did you discover on the ground in your research about Chavez?
What I found in practice was not a strongman, but an increasingly conscious and mobilized population ripe with social movements. Chavez played a major role in pushing this development forward. His absence will certainly be felt.

Do you believe that relations between the U.S. and Venezuela will improve under Nicolas Maduro, who assumed the presidency this month?
Despite claiming to want improved relations with Venezuela, the Obama administration has refused to take the first step toward a thaw: recognizing Maduro. You cannot improve relations with a leader that you fail to even recognize.

PHILADELPHIA UNIVERSITY

Get a job after graduation

Martin Yate, best-selling author of "Knock 'Em Dead: Secrets & Strategies For First-Time Job Seekers," has these five tips for students.

1 You're free

The good news is that you got what you wanted: independence. The bad news is that no one is going to pick up after you anymore. Whether you fail or succeed in life is now all up to you.

2 Plan ahead

You are at the start of what will be a 50-year work life that will feature job changes about every four years. You can either guide the trajectory of your life by learning about career management and become successful, or you can leave it up to chance and almost certainly fail.

3 Take aim

No one in corporate America has the time or inclination to find you a nice job based on your degree and objectives. You have to decide on a target job, learn about it and go get it. There is no time to waste.

4 Think it out

Many grads want to be successful and have their own business right now. Many try, and most fail and never try again. This failure often stems from lack of practical business skills. All too soon, wage discrimination will push you out of corporate America, so use your core professional career as on-the-job training for making your later entrepreneurial efforts successful.

5 Narrow it down

You will need a résumé focused on a specific job and a LinkedIn profile that reflects that message. Both are important parts of the new job search, so take advantage of them before you graduate.

CULTURE

Twitter feed

We're checking in with some of Hollywood's biggest names to see what they've been up to — in their own words, in 240 characters or fewer.

Today, Olivia Wilde is only a little mad at Twitter, Dana Delany doesn't feel like getting up, Sarah Silverman is an unhappy constituent and Jason Mraz is bad with details.

@oliviawilde: The only thing I resent twitter for is ruining the word "twitterpated" which was a solid go-to in my daily dialogue.

@DanaDelany: I think my fate is to write my life story in bed. Like Louise Brooks & Proust.

@SarahKSilverman: Dear House of Representatives, Who exactly are you representing?

@jason_mraz: Just invited friends over for dinner but forgot to add, "Friday." Apologies to those who came over to a dark house.

Khloe Kardashian out on 'X-Factor'

Khloe Kardashian has been booted off Fox's "The X Factor," while her co-host Mario Lopez will remain for the third season.

"Khloe Kardashian will not be returning to co-host 'The X Factor,'" the show's producers said in a statement. "We really enjoyed working with her and wish her all the best in her future endeavors." (Translation: Don't let the door hit you on the way out, KK!)

Lopez will join returning judges Simon Cowell and Demi Lovato, with at least one more judge yet to be announced.

"I'm thrilled Mario is back for Season 3 of 'The X Factor,'" said Cowell in a statement. "Hosting a live show and keeping the judges — especially Demi — in line, is not an easy job, but Mario is a pro and we are glad he's coming back."

Lopez, you sly, well-oiled, muscular fox. Who would have thought the dude who made sitting backwards in a chair popular would be the most successful graduate of "Saved By The Bell"?

Bynes' behavior explained

So what's the source of Amanda Bynes' latest spate of bizarre antics during her stay in New York City? "Amanda's increasingly disturbing behavior is related to the fact that she smokes pot," a source claims to Radar Online. "It makes her more paranoid and instead of mellowing her out, it does the opposite. Amanda begins talking faster and just can't seem to sit still." Bynes was most recently photographed walking the NYC streets with a massive scarf obscuring her face and head. Pot? Is that what they're calling meth these days? I don't know. I'm old.

DOROTHY ROBINSON

Lachey to raise son in Ohio

No disrespect to L.A., but Nick Lachey doesn't think it's any place to raise a child — at least not his 7-month-old son, Camden. Which is why he and wife Vanessa Minnillo are packing up and heading to Ohio, he tells Access Hollywood. "I loved growing up in Cincinnati, where I'm from. My brother's there, his kids are there, my parents are there," Lachey says. "I want to try to give him the most normal childhood he can have."

Reese speaks out on arrest

With the mug shot from her arrest in Atlanta for disorderly conduct making the rounds, Reese Witherspoon is speaking out about the headline-making incident. "Out of respect for the ongoing legal situation, I cannot comment on everything that is being reported right now," Witherspoon says in a statement. "But I do want to say I clearly had one drink too many and I am deeply embarrassed about the things I said. It was definitely a scary situation and I was frightened for my husband, but that is no excuse. I was disrespectful to the officer who was just doing his job. I have nothing but respect for the police and I'm very sorry for my behavior." Witherspoon reportedly got into an argument with an officer (she infamously played the "Don't you know who I am?" card) after husband Jim Toth was pulled over on suspicion of driving while intoxicated. Both were arrested and briefly jailed.

More details on Ozzy

Ozzy Osbourne may have come clean about his recent battles with drugs and alcohol, but that doesn't mean the public gesture was enough to patch things up with wife Sharon Osbourne, according to the Daily Star. "She just wants out at this point," a source says. "Ozzy seems to think he can win her back, but Sharon isn't so sure as she's been living in a private hell." Exactly what kind of a private hell are we talking about here? "He kept accusing Sharon of trying to kill him. It was heartbreaking for her," the source says. "He was living in an imaginary world for most of the time and seeing a lot of things that weren't even there. He was running around in the same clothes all the time, not washing." Come on. None of this can be new for Sharon, right? She must be used to this by this point.

Jam session.
The Roots keyboard player brings a little musical magic back to the city.

The magic of Philadelphia music often happens in a small club, tucked away, with players whose names you might not immediately recognize but whose music you've definitely heard.

West Philly-raised James Poyser of The Roots is bringing a little of that magic to the Kimmel Center's Commonwealth Plaza tomorrow. The jam, "Sittin' In: James Poyser & Friends," is part of the Philadelphia Festival of the Arts.

"This is something we used to do all the time coming up in Philly, at Silk City, Wilhelmina's and the Black Lily," Poyser says. "A bunch of like-minded musicians, we all know and listen to the same things, we'd get together, park it, and someone would play a melody or a riff or a DJ would play a record part and we'd get an idea and just go from there."

That Philly sound has seeped into all kinds of contemporary music, and Poyser has had a major role in it. He's produced or played on records for everyone from Adele to Common and he's an integral part of The Roots' sound on "Late Night with Jimmy Fallon."

"It's very rare to find a band on the road that doesn't have a musician from the Philly area," Poyser says. "I'm proud to be a part of that."

Poyser's "friends" for the "Sittin' In" session include ace drummer Steve McKie, along with whoever else is in town for the night.

These days, Poyser doesn't get to spend as much time in the city. His gig with The Roots on "Fallon," along with producing and playing, keeps him in the 212. Yet, he's excited about moving to the 11:30 p.m. slot of NBC's "The Tonight Show" when Fallon and crew take over for Jay Leno in 2014.

"It's definitely a blessing and God's favor," Poyser says. "You know, it's an honor ... We're waiting to see — we're not sure what it entails and we're anxious to see what happens. The Fallon show is great. We get paid to play music and act like idiots."

CHRISTA PARRAVANI

NINA SUBIN

In her attempts to understand her twin sister's downward spiral, the author follows in her footsteps, losing her marriage and nearly her life.

WITH OR WITHOUT HER

In the gripping memoir "Her," Christa Parravani describes what it was like to grow up alongside — then lose to a drug overdose — her identical twin. And she begins with a startling statistic: After a twin dies, the surviving twin's life is immediately at risk.

In her attempts to understand her sister's downward spiral (which starts by eating one of her pills, found wedged in a crack on the kitchen floor) she follows in her footsteps, losing her marriage and nearly her life. She told Metro about using the book as a way to crawl out of that space — to pen the memoir, she incorporated some of her sister's writings, found under her bed in a Tupperware container.

How did you decide when to use Cara's writings?
When something would get really difficult for me — it felt too emotional or I'd gotten to a place where I felt like I couldn't go on because I was exhausted, I was sad or I just kind of plain missed her — I thought, here's the moment to allow Cara into the book. In the beginning of writing, she was appearing a lot. As time went on and I got more confident in my abilities as a writer and I got further from the grief, I found I needed to rely on her less and less.

Did you make a decision to be so unflinchingly honest? It seems like you held nothing back.
I wrote the book as if no one would ever read it. It was sort of a love letter to my sister. It was a way to tell her that I loved her and not to be forgotten. In order to write a book that tells truths that are necessary, you have to forget about embarrassing yourself.

"Boston Love" tees can be purchased at Ctrla.lt/design or Teespring.com/bostonloveblue for $18. All proceeds benefit www.onefundboston.org.

Style and substance. "Boston Love" T-shirts are a fashionable way to show you care.

After the attack on the Boston Marathon last Monday, people across the nation were left with questions. How can we help? How can we begin to ease the pain caused by an event that we still do not — and may never — understand?

This drove to help mobilize business and individuals alike to set up foundations and donate what they could. One such business is Ctrl Alt Design, a Boston-based creative agency that specializes in graphic design. Robert McElaney — Ctrl Alt Design's creative director — designed an image that became the logo for their line of "Boston Love" T-shirts, sold on Ctrla.lt/design for a limited time only.

The screen-printed tees feature a simple yet evocative image of a large red heart, the top arcs of which form Boston's skyline. All proceeds of the shirts' sales go directly to One Fund Boston, a nonprofit organization set up by Massachusetts Governor Deval Patrick and Boston Mayor Tom Menino to benefit those most affected by the attack.

"When the tragedy struck, witnessing all the pain and confusion, I felt compelled to create something to convey not only strength, but also compassion, something to bring people together," said McElaney.

As of 5 p.m. on Sunday, they'd sold 267 shirts, raising roughly $2,400. It's an impressive figure that speaks to the power of community in Boston, considering they'd begun selling the shirts on their site just two days earlier. The response has been so positive that they've extended the campaign through May 1. "We had a lot of people asking to make sure they had the option through the week, until they get paid," McElaney said. "Which somewhat blows my mind. [Living] paycheck to paycheck and still wanting to give? ... Boston is awesome."

"Boston Love" tees come in light blue, navy or black. / PROVIDED

This positive response reflects the anthem the city has adopted: Boston Strong. "I moved to Boston roughly 15 years ago. I've been lucky enough to meet a wide range of friends and acquaintances," said McElaney. "Over time, some have moved out of state, some out of the country. When a tragedy like this strikes, they all have responded with care, strength and support. That's what Boston Strong means to me."

The singer speaks on makeup, music and her new MTV documentary.

ROLLING IN GLITTER AND SLEEPING IN EYESHADOW

You're about to go on tour with Pitbull. How do you keep on top of your beauty regimen on the road?
I could go for two days without a shower, but I always take care of my skin and my face. The rest of my life is chaos, but I'm pretty religious about that. I cleanse and moisturize all the time because I'm prone to having dry skin. I've also started putting a tiny, pea-size amount of retinol in my night cream. It supposedly helps your skin exfoliate constantly.

In your song "TiK ToK," you sing about brushing your teeth with a bottle of Jack. Are you the type to fall asleep with your makeup on?
Whiskey isn't necessarily my first choice when it comes to dental hygiene. I always wash my face. Sometimes I just leave the eyes because I like my makeup better the next morning, it looks naturally wild. It creates this sexy, smoky eye that I don't know how to create myself. It looks great.

Speaking of eyes, you seem to have a thing for glitter.
I cover myself in glitter! I pour it on the ground, lay in it and roll around. Then my glitter roadie sprinkles it all over me. His job is to make sure every inch of my body is covered.

Is he a makeup artist?
No, he just has a beard.

Your hair — the waves, the cornrows — it must be high maintenance.
My hair is a constant battle. It's like the fifth member of my band. I have to keep it healthy. But it's a struggle when I'm bleaching and styling it constantly. So I sleep in Kerastase Deep Conditioner, Bumble and Bumble Mending Conditioner or Moroccan Oil. When I don't have someone prodding my head, I tie it up in a messy bun.

You recently wrapped filming your MTV documentary, "Ke$ha: My Crazy Beautiful Life." Did you keep on a full face of makeup throughout?
You'll see me with no makeup, no hair [done], no nothing. I'm running around without a bra on, looking so disheveled.

A lot of tabloids have made a big deal about your recent weight loss. Has fame changed you, physically?
Of course. I have to be stricter than I ever was before. When I train for my tour, it's like I'm training for an athletic event. Every morning when I wake up, I try to meditate and get in the right mental headspace in order to kick ass. With my first record, I didn't realize how many eyes would be on me. This time around, I'm prepared.

Your popcorn craving just got more fun

Cooking. This recipe for popcorn balls is so easy, even kids can do it.

1 Coat a large heat-proof bowl with butter, vegetable oil or cooking spray and place popcorn in the bowl. Place sugar, corn syrup, water, vinegar and salt in a medium saucepan and stir to combine. Place over high heat, stirring until sugar is dissolved, about 2 minutes. Bring to a boil and cook until mixture registers 260°F on a candy/fat thermometer, about 5 to 7 minutes.

2 Remove from heat and stir in butter and vanilla until melted and smooth. Immediately drizzle sugar mixture over popcorn and stir continuously with a rubber spatula, scraping the bottom of the bowl, until popcorn is thoroughly coated and cool enough to handle, about 3 minutes.

3 Using buttered or oiled hands, tightly press mixture (it may still be a bit warm) into 3-inch rounds. Place on waxed or parchment paper to cool completely, about 15 to 20 minutes.

Ingredients

- 9 cups plain popped popcorn
- 1 cup granulated sugar
- ½ cup light corn syrup
- ½ cup water
- 1 teaspoon distilled white vinegar
- 1 teaspoon kosher salt
- 4 tablespoons unsalted butter (½ stick), cut into small pieces
- ½ teaspoon vanilla extract

Children don't have enough life experience to put tragedies in context. / THINKSTOCK IMAGES

Talking to kids about terrorism

Parental guidance. How parents should handle psychological injuries following terrifying ordeals.

One week after the Boston Marathon bombings, the healing is only just beginning for many families dealing with the less tangible injuries of psychological trauma. Metro asked Dr. Kate Roberts, a Massachusetts-based child psychologist and parenting coach at Kate Roberts & Associates, how parents should handle psychological injuries following such terrifying ordeals.

"Children directly affected will have symptoms of acute trauma reaction — things like not being able to stop thinking about the event," she says. "Their mind jumps back on images even if they're playing or busy doing something. They experience troubling, intrusive thoughts. Noises and the unexpected can be especially startling."

Parents might share similar symptoms, which can also include sadness and mood changes. But for children, traumatic events are a very new experience: "There's a depersonalization," says Dr. Roberts. "Their world is shaken and they don't have enough life experience to put it into context."

The endless media loop covering events like Boston and Sandy Hook can be harrowing, particularly to young minds. To support a child's healing process, Dr. Roberts advises parents to start a dialogue and be patient.

"Ask them how they feel, but don't push it if they are reluctant to talk," she says. "If your child is exhibiting signs of fear — perhaps they're reluctant to go to the playground — don't force them. Reintroduce children to normal activities incrementally and only fully engage when they are ready."

Parents are often eager to see improvement in their child's behavior and emphasize positive signals, while ignoring negative ones. "In due time more normal activity will ensue," Dr. Roberts says, "but initially there's not a lot of

Advice

Counseling can help

Dr. Roberts says parents shouldn't err on the side of caution.

"Engage the child in counseling — the earlier, the better. Family counseling is important so that parents can be there and understand the healthy coping mechanism the child adopts and then reinforce it."

Riverboats refining big-ship perks

Bigger staterooms are one of the hallmarks of the new River Splendor. / VANTAGE

Destinations.
Here's how you can travel to multiple destinations — without having to lug your suitcase.

Ocean cruising has its perks. Tropical destinations, all-you-can-eat buffets, water slides, bowling, free booze: It's a $30 billion-dollar business meant to cater to every whim. But sometimes the excessiveness of ocean cruising can overwhelm. What if you want to experience the joys of traveling by sea without thousands of people crammed alongside you — without paying extra for excursions or having to adhere to a rigid schedule while visiting increasingly homogenized ports of call?

Riverboat cruising plucks the aspects that make ocean cruising so attractive — the ability to hit multiple destinations without unpacking; the collegial atmosphere on board; an international, knowledgeable staff; a cosmopolitan experience — while being more refined and smaller than their big-white-boat counterparts. As the name implies, riverboat cruising uses smaller vessels that stick mainly to rivers, mostly in Europe but also in Asia and the South Pacific, the Mediterranean and Northern Africa, and even Antarctica.

"Most of our guests are seasoned world travelers for whom the destination is still the main attraction. For them, it's not about all-night buffets or skating rinks or other novelties you find aboard big cruise ships — it's about the discovery," says Kevin Wallace, COO of Vantage Deluxe World Travel, a premiere riverboat cruising company. "You unpack once, then sail right into the heart of ports great and small, where sightseeing and intercultural activities are always included."

Smaller boats mean you can slip into smaller ports of call — you usually just walk off the boat and into the center of town. But riverboat companies aren't naive. They include the perks Americans know and love: full-service cocktail lounges with live entertainment, Internet cafes, excursions and, yes, even all-you-can-eat breakfast and lunch buffets (as well as a formal sit-down dinner every night).

Wallace is celebrating the launch of the latest addition to their fleet, the River Splendor. The new vessel has a busy year ahead: After its March christening in Antwerp, Belgium, it will spend this year cruising the Rhine, Main and Danube rivers between Amsterdam and the Black Sea on Vantage's most popular package, the Majestic Rivers of Europe: Castles, Cathedrals and Fairytales. It will also be part of Vantage's Gateway to the Black Sea itinerary that takes travelers from Budapest along the Danube all the way to the Black Sea resort of Constanta, Romania.

So, with these trips, instead of onboard bowling you'll just have to enjoy a home-hosted lunch with a family in Croatia instead. In lieu of a Broadway musical at night, you'll have to settle for an exclusive classical concert at the Kursalon in Vienna.

Sounds like a pretty good trade-off, no?

Philly summer camp guide

Roundup. Let your children discover themselves this summer.

Campers at the Young Performers Theater Camp get into step at a dance rehearsal. / PHILADELPHIA PARKS & RECREATION

Camp is supposed to be exciting and filled with discovery and adventure. Kids should be learning about themselves as they learn more about the things that interest them. Thankfully, Philadelphia has a day camp for nearly every interest, hobby and talent. So while the grown-ups continue their regular old work schedule, youngsters can embrace summer vacation.

Discovery Camp

The Franklin Institute offers kids in pre-K through eighth grade the opportunity to learn about space, experiment with science and explore the messy world of slime. Each week features a new career track, all centered on education through fun.
June 17-Aug. 30
$300-$375 per week

Young Journalists Summer Camp

Junior reporters can give the Metro news staff some competition with the help of WHYY, Philadelphia' s public radio station. High school students will be assigned a neighborhood beat to report about. The campers will be taught how to pitch their stories, research topics, conduct interviews and present the information through text, audio and video.
June 24-July 5 and Aug. 5-16
$1,200-$1,350 per course
Hamilton Public Media Common at WHYY
150 N. 6th St.

Kids also do "Fiddler on the Roof" at the Young Performers Theater Camp.

The cost of camp

Camp can be pricey, but many programs have scholarships available to help with the cost. Others offer a week-by-week option rather than full-term enrollment. Some even have a bulk-purchase discount. Be sure to check a camp's website for alternate payment options.

Summer Camp at the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts

PAFA provides a creative outlet for little Van Goghs ages 5 to 15. "There is a huge range of options," says Cari Freno, manager of family programs at PAFA. "For the younger students, the camps have themes like superheroes and imaginary places. For the oldest group, the classes are more skill-based, like urban and graphic design. And the two age groups in between have a mix of the two."
July 1-Aug. 16
$235-$300 per week

Young Performers Theater Camp

If you have budding thespians at home, the Young Performers Theater Camp is their calling. "Last year we had about 480 kids at the camp — each year it gets bigger," says Tom Dignam, performing arts coordinator for Philadelphia Parks and Recreation. The program, which is open to children ages 9 to 18, is divided into dance and musical theater. Each group auditions for and rehearses a specific performance, which is put on at the end of the season.

Camp can brush away the 'mental cobwebs'

Summer. Education camps help keep kids sharp for the coming school year.

Even for those ultra-curious kids who love soaking up knowledge, sitting in the classroom can be a chore. This summer, enroll your kids in camp programs designed to take education away from the blackboard — and make it fun.

"Camps can provide the opportunity to learn new skills and knowledge, or to help maintain and strengthen the skills and knowledge [children] already have," says Rhonda Geyer, director of noncredit programs at Temple University. Many educational camps, like Temple's Summer Education Camp programs at the Ambler campus, are organized into a series of one-week sessions so campers can sample a variety of topics — both those they've already had some exposure to and others that will let them explore something new.

"You want to find topics that will be fun, interesting and educational," Geyer says. Camp is not summer school, though, so "the program should also provide recreation and other downtime, so kids can have some fun."

She adds: "It is summertime, after all."

At Temple, programs range from creative courses in drawing, cartooning and writing to computer-based technical challenges. Some combine both, like website design and robotics. Kids who prefer being outdoors can learn geocaching or study wildlife.

Students who need a boost maintaining or strengthening basic skills in math or reading and writing also have access to camps that emphasize fun. Temple offers the Jumpstart! series, which helps kids through individual and group activities. It's structured with the Pennsylvania System of School Assessment in mind.

"Practicing learning skills in a camp-like environment can be fun and also help students return to school without the 'mental cobwebs' that sometimes collect over the summer," Geyer says. "Hopefully they will have a new positive perspective concerning their own skill strengths, abilities and interests."

Advice

What should you look for in a camp you're considering?

- The instructors should be competent and qualified; often they are teachers in local school districts.
- The staff-to-camper ratio should be low: It's around 1:10 in most Temple programs.
- The facilities: Camps held on college campuses benefit from state-of-the-art computer labs, air-conditioned classrooms and good sports facilities.

Horoscope

♉ Taurus | April 21 - May 21. People whose work you oversee will likely require some skillful management. Their production could suffer.

♊ Gemini | May 22 - June 20. Taking a risk on an unpredictable situation could be an exercise in futility. This might be one of those days when even sure things are difficult.

♋ Cancer | June 21 - July 22. Rather than respond in kind, make an effort to be affectionate with your special someone.

♌ Leo | July 23 - Aug. 22. If you hope to really get things done, you'll have to be industrious. If you're neglectful, matters will only get worse.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23 - Sept. 22. If your credit cards are too accessible, there is a strong possibility that you will waste your money on extravagances.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23 - Oct. 22. Should you have to deal with a surly, impossible to please individual, don't blame yourself. You didn't fail, he or she did.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23 - Nov. 21. If you feel impelled to do something for another, do it out of the goodness of your heart.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22 - Jan 20. Be mindful of whom you talk to. Don't squander all your attention on a hot shot who doesn't give a hoot.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21 - Feb 18. Don't get into a situation similar to one that has caused you all kinds of problems in the past.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19 - March 20. Just because you know the other party well is no reason to ignore the details in a joint agreement. Leave no reason for problems to develop down the line.

♈ Aries | March 21 - April 20. Your associates will not be manipulated if they don't like the way you want to handle a project.

Some expert!

Re: "Don't frack New York" (Metro, April 19-21) Mark Ruffalo, actor and activist, who was born in Wisconsin and lives Los Angeles, has undertaken to save New York from the horrors of hydrologic fracturing. He recites a litany of ecological disasters which it supposedly causes without citing any evidence. He then invokes some so-called experts to advocate large-scale development of alternative energy sources without explaining how they would work. The trouble is, they won't work. His so called experts may have mastered the intricacies of political correctness, but they do not understand Ohm's Law.

Let the future be a surprise

Re: "Welcome to the future" (Metro, Earth Day edition, April 22) Although it's fun to try to predict the future, no one can. When I was a child in the 1950s, the future for me was jet packs, flying cars and, as in every future prediction, robot servants. Well, we all know how that turned out. Thirty years ago we didn't have cell phones or the Internet, but no one was predicting them then, either. Why try to predict it?

Collins' final record as Sixers head coach stands at 110-120. / GETTY IMAGES

CATALDI: COLLINS TARNISHED HIS LEGACY FOREVER

The voice of Philly sports

ANGELO CATALDI

Doug Collins did something unprecedented in his final few months as coach of the Sixers. He rendered his status as a Philadelphia sports hero obsolete. Never again will he be the gritty overachiever who cared so much about winning. Now and forever, he will be the man whose raging ego ruined his legacy.

After a week of shameless public lies about his intentions, Collins finally stepped down in one final flurry of self-serving bravado. He prefaced his tribute to himself by saying he had been plotting with his bosses a dignified goodbye, making his nauseating exit yet another spectacular failure in this disgraceful season.

In fact, it is impossible to imagine a less dignified send-off than the one he gave himself. If there were any remaining doubts about his total disconnection from the fans (remember, last month he advised them to pray for Andrew Bynum), they disappeared during his final news conference.

At one point, he had the audacity to blubber about his loving relationship with the fans, after stonewalling their questions for months. We have learned — from him, no less — that he decided to leave last Christmas.

His final words to the city included a detailed recitation of his résumé, conveniently omitting the fact that he was actually a loser here with a 110-120 record. He also emphasized his amazing kinship with his players, none of whom he thought highly enough of to confide in his plans to leave. And he actually said he was "always a winner, never a champion."

Always a winner? Was he a winner when he publicly attacked his players for "not breaking a sweat" after one awful loss? Was he a winner when he berated reporter after reporter for asking valid questions about the Bynum disaster? Is he a winner now, with his team in far worse shape than when he got here?

Collins thinks he can bamboozle the fans with bluster about his playing days here, about his commitment to the job and his love for Philadelphia. If he actually did love our city, he wouldn't have spent the final months here insulting the fans with his public tantrums.

It is impossible for a sports hero in Philly to lose that designation. Allen Iverson is a national embarrassment, but he still receives standing ovations every time he returns. Lenny Dykstra is in prison, and fans still speak fondly of him.

Collins managed to soil his legacy in a way even those two pathetic cases didn't. In the end, he didn't respect the fans.

Ultimately, he cared only about himself. He left with no class and with no dignity.

He said it

"Collins' nauseating exit was another spectacular failure in this disgraceful season."

Man U takes title

Manchester United wasted no time taking the Premier League crown away from rival Manchester City. Man U locked up their 20th league title, with a month left in the season, with a 3-0 win over Aston Villa yesterday. Robin van Persie, signed this offseason to spark the offense, had a hat trick in the win.

More trouble

McClain arrested again

New Ravens linebacker Rolando McClain continued to add to his rap sheet yesterday. The 23-year-old was arrested for disorderly conduct and resisting arrest. McClain was arrested in January for having tinted windows and then lying to police about his identity. More seriously, he was convicted of four misdemeanors last May for his involvement in a shooting. Those were later dismissed.

CARFAX VEHICLE HISTORY REPORTS

Opinion. Charlie Manuel fully responsible for Phillies' tragic fall from champs to underachievers

As the Phillies continue to flounder below .500, a fascinating debate is emerging about whom to blame more for their failures: GM Ruben Amaro Jr. or manager Charlie Manuel. The correct answer is Manuel — by a wide margin.

Now, I understand Manuel won the World Series here in 2008, while Amaro was just a front-office assistant, so the folksy skipper still holds the support of a majority of the fans. Philadelphia never stops loving a champion. Just ask the 1973-75 Flyers.

But Manuel is the bigger problem, as he proved again with some abominable strategy last week. On successive nights late in tie games, Manuel placed the team's fate in the hands of relievers Jeremy Horst and Phillippe Aumont. In both cases, the better choices — Mike Adams and Jonathan Papelbon, among others — sat in the bullpen until it was too late.

Manuel's explanations for these obvious mistakes were totally illogical. He said he was "getting concerned" about how much Adams was being used, although the setup specialist had pitched exactly six innings in the previous two weeks. Papelbon is used only in save situations, then he entered a game two nights later with the Phillies one run behind and holding a four-run lead on Sunday.

Blame Charlie Manuel, not Ruben Amaro Jr., for the Phillies mess.
GETTY IMAGES

He said it

"The folksy skipper holds the support of a majority of the fans. Philadelphia never stops loving a champion."

Amaro did his job. He provided Manuel with two of the best late-inning relievers in baseball, but Adams and Papelbon can fill their roles only if the manager uses them.

Manuel should have been fired a year ago, after his 102-win team lost in the first round of the playoffs because of strategic blunders.

If you really want to blame Amaro, rip him because he hasn't had the courage to get rid of his beloved — and overrated — manager.

Opinion

NFL expects Eagles to stink

There was no press release, but the NFL made a bold statement about the 2013 Eagles: They stink.

This appraisal was hidden in the new schedule, which has jarred the Birds back to their Not-Ready-For-Prime-Time days before Andy Reid. In the first season under Chip Kelly, the Eagles are slated to play only two night games.

What the NFL is saying is obvious. The debut of Kelly and his new brand of football is worthy of attention; hence, the Monday night opener.

Unintentionally, the NFL appears to have done Kelly a huge favor. Facing a still-gimpy Robert Griffin III in the opener is a gift, followed by winnable games against the Chargers and Chiefs. Is it ridiculous to think the Birds could be 3-0 on Sept. 22? Can you imagine how much that start will help Kelly's players to believe in the new system?

Here's my first prediction of the Chip Kelly era: The Eagles will not stink in 2013.

COMFORT ZONE

The Phillies outfielder dishes on favorite hobbies, sneakers and other off-the-field passions.

HANGIN' WITH DOM BROWN

Vance Worley was a good friend of yours. He had a bunch of hobbies. Did he encourage you to do the same?
One thing he had was a shoe collection and I have a shoe collection. It's not on the Vance Worley level. But I have some cool shoes.

What's your favorite?
I love the Jordan 11. I've had a pair since they came out in 2010. I haven't worn them since. They're just hanging up.

What makes them special?
They're patent leather shoes. They call them the "Space Jam" shoes. Those were the type of shoes he wore in the movie "Space Jam." Those shoes are worth a lot of money. I'll put some of my shoes in consignment shops.

Always hitting

"I have some great hobbies that help me get away, but I'll tell you what — I'm always thinking about hitting."

What else relaxes you?
Restaurants. They're some great restaurants in this town. I was about to say girls. But I've been talking to somebody who has been around for years. But yeah, I like good places to eat.

What do you do at home for fun in the offseason that you haven't done here yet?
Fishing. I hear there are some good places here, but I'm a freshwater guy. I love fishing for bass. That helps relax me.

Do you feel more comfortable this time around since it appears that you won't be benched if you have some bad games?
Probably. The mind works on its own. I don't think about it, but maybe I do [subconsciously]. I want to do as well as I can, but if I have a rough game, it helps to know the next day I'll be out there trying to help the team win.

ED CONDRAN

Phillies need to get on base more

Ruben Amaro was justifiably incredulous last week when he shook his head over the Phillies' inability to draw walks.

"It's ridiculous to have no walks in three days," Amaro said. "I cannot believe it. More importantly, it's not just about walks — it's about producing."

If you don't get on base, good luck being productive. The team's table-setters have unbelievably low OBPs. Jimmy Rollins has a paltry OBP of .294 and Ben Revere's OBP is .253, and the team OBP is .301.

"We have to work the count better," Revere said. ED CONDRAN

WHY YOU NEED PHYSICAL GOLD OR SILVER IN YOUR IRA OR 401(k)

With the uncertainty in the U.S. stock market and global economies, you've probably been hearing a lot about the idea of adding physical gold and silver to your investment portfolio, especially to your existing IRA or a 401(k) from a previous employer.

But how do you go about transferring a portion of your IRA or rolling over an old 401(k) into actual physical gold and silver coins and bars? That's where American Bullion comes in.

"It's actually a very simple and rather quick process, and we've helped thousands of people roll over or transfer their retirement accounts into precious metals," explained Jon Nelson, a spokesperson with American Bullion.

"We have a safe and simple in-house system in place that's hassle-free and 100 percent tax-free."

Nelson also noted to not be discouraged or surprised if your financial advisor tries to steer you away from owning physical gold or has never recommended it.

"Typically, advisors don't earn ongoing commissions when you invest in physical precious metals," said Nelson.

"Our clients often comment on how safe they feel now and how easy it was to become an owner of gold," said American Bullion's Nelson.

"After all, gold has been preserving wealth for centuries, and whether you look long-term or short-term, you'll see that it's exactly the kind of uncertainty that exists in today's economy that increases the demand for gold."

FREE "Gold Guide" available by calling 800-897-9664.

American Bullion is offering a free Gold Guide packed with information about adding physical gold and silver to your retirement accounts. To receive the guide, call 800-897-9664.

McInerney named MLS Player of Week

MLS. The Union forward takes home Week 8 honors after scoring two more goals in Sunday's win.

Union forward Jack McInerney has been named Major League Soccer Player of the Week.

McInerney scored twice in the first half of the Union's 3-2 victory over DC United on Sunday. The 20-year-old has scored in three straight games and leads MLS with six goals. McInerney is the youngest player to hold the outright goals lead in league history. He also leads the league in game-winning goals with three on the year.

The Union (3-2-1, 11 points) face the New England Revolution on Saturday (7:30 p.m.) at Gillette Stadium outside Boston. The MLS Player of the Week award is voted on by the North American Soccer Reporters.

HAVE YOU HAD EMPHYSEMA FLARE-UPS?

Taking A Statin Pill May Help.

The Temple Lung Center is conducting a clinical trial to find out if a statin pill, used to reduce cholesterol and prevent heart disease, can also help reduce the number and severity of emphysema flare-ups.

TO BE A PART OF THIS TRIAL YOU MUST:

- Have emphysema
- Be 40 to 80 years of age
- Be a current or ex-smoker
- Not be taking a statin for high cholesterol or heart disease

You may receive a statin pill or a placebo (an inactive substance) and medical tests, including breathing and blood tests, at no cost during the trial.

The trial consists of 4 to 6 visits per year to the research facility, Temple Lung Center, for up to 2 years. You may receive $100 for the first visit and $50 for each following visit.

For more information, call 215-707-4260 or e-mail breathe@temple.edu

Is your eating out of control?

Do you feel disgusted or guilty after overeating?

If so, you may have binge eating disorder. Binge eating is the most common eating disorder and has the potential to impact the health of those diagnosed with the disorder. Doctors in your area are currently recruiting people to participate in a research study evaluating an investigational medication for binge eating disorder.

To be eligible to participate, you must be between the ages of 18 and 55.

Study-related care and medication will be provided at no cost to eligible participants and you may be compensated for time and travel.

Health Insurance or a doctor's referral is not needed.
